The Rats By James Herbert

Out of the sewers and streets comes the biggest threat London has ever faced—rats, hungry for human flesh—in this 40th anniversary edition of the classic bestseller

It was only when the bones of the first devoured victims were discovered that the true nature and power of these swarming black creatures with their razor sharp teeth and the taste for human blood began to be realized by a panic-stricken city. For millions of years, man and rats had been natural enemies. But now, for the first time—suddenly, shockingly, horribly—the balance of power had shifted. . . This is a special 40th anniversary edition of the classic bestseller that launched horror writer James Herbert's career.

Editorial Review

From the Publisher

These audiobooks from Macmillan UK offer abridged readings of some of the world's most popular authors. Handsomely packaged, they feature readings by eminent actors of the stage and screen, including James Fox, Martin Shaw, Tim Pigott-Smith and David Rintoul.

About the Author

James Herbert is the author of 23 novels which have sold more than 54 million copies worldwide, and have been translated into more than 30 languages. In 2010, he was made the Grand Master of Horror by the World Horror Convention, and was also awarded an OBE by the Queen for services to literature.

As mutant flesh-eating rats emerge from the dark underground of London, the city must figure a way to combat the intelligent and aggressive creatures while also protecting the millions. The city evacuates as a specialized team figures out how to destroy the menace. Herbert's gruesome tale of mass infestation leaves the most stolid listener queasy with help from Gareth Armstrong's controlled reading. His crisp English voice paces the story with a calm but intense escalation. Armstrong also proves capable with the range of English accents and character emotions. His vocal rendering of the more grotesque scenes of the story proves chilling and leaves listeners feeling a bit more apprehensive about small four-legged creatures.
